The guaranteed minimum jackpot amount for Oz Lotto is AUD $2 million, but the top prize often rises to a much higher level. In fact, Oz Lotto currently holds the record for awarding the largest ever Division 1 payout in Australian lottery history – nearly $112 million, shared across four tickets back in 2012. That was just one of two Oz Lotto jackpots to exceed AUD $100,000,000. The note said that after their recent travels to Macau, and after receiving feedback from industry contracts, it was confirmed that "this growth has continued post the trading update and is expected to grow further." But that doesn't mean all numbers deserve your attention equally. While every number is equally likely to be picked, the amount you can expect to win if you're lucky enough to hit a jackpot using those numbers can vary. This is due to the fact that jackpots are split if more than one winning ticket exists – and not all numbers are equally likely to be played. If you aren't a math whiz and you need an easy way of calculating the outs, use Phil Gordon's "rule of 4 and 2" (found in Gordon's The Little Green Book). This rule states that you multiply your outs by one of these numbers to calculate the percentage odds of getting the card you need. If you're on the flop waiting for the turn, multiply your outs by 2. If you're on the turn waiting for the river, also multiply the outs by 2. If you're on the flop waiting for the river—that is, your opponent is all-in—multiply the outs by 4. Dragon link pokie machine
