In live casinos, video keno tends to be a better deal than the slower, more labour-intensive traditional game where you fill out physical cards and wait for each drawing. However, the best deals of all are usually found at Net casinos, where keno often has the same great odds you'd find from online slots or table games. As a rule of thumb, live keno games might typically return 70%-80% to a player, while video keno will often return over 90%. The best Internet games surpass 95% on occasion. The reason for this is simple. In your local area, one or two casinos might dominate the gaming landscape. On the Internet, a website has to compete against dozens, maybe hundreds, of competitors (depending on location). They have to offer better odds or customers go somewhere else. Click on the Spin button and try to match the coins on the vertical, horizontal and diagonal lines. Once you complete at least 2 win lines, you will be paid for them according to the game payable.
