The original game involved the dice being thrown against a wall, door or anything that could stop the dice roll. This has remained the same in the street version of the game. The game owes its controlled method of dice throwing to war veterans of the Second World War. With no surface to throw dice against, they used military blankets as shooting surfaces. The soldiers created the army blanket roll which is still used today. So why do many players end up losing in pokies? The answer is simple: people lose track of time and cannot walk away when they should. Set yourself the time you want to spend in the online casino playing pokies.
