but is removed from the race just before post time, the horse is said to have been scratched. All bets that only include a scratched horse – win, place and show bets – are voided, meaning bettors will receive their money back. If you've made a more exotic bet, what happens will depend on the nature of your bet. For instance, if you've boxed three horses for an exacta, you'll have the portions of that bet that involved the scratched horse returned to you, but the rest of your bet will remain in place.
